The influence of Joe Fargis spans the entire scope of the sport; he has served as a competitor, trainer, administrator, and a leading figure in show jumping for more than 40 years. For his undying support and incredible legacy, Fargis was awarded the USEF Lifetime Achievement Awarded in 2012.

Joe has a long list of accomplishments in the competition arena. He made his first of more than 30 FEI Nations Cup appearances in 1970 in Lucerne, Switzerland, beginning his legacy as a stalwart on US teams. In 1975, Fargis helped the US secure Team Gold at the Pan American Games in Mexico City, Mexico.

Nine years later at the 1984 Olympic Games in Los Angeles, Fargis won Team and Individual Gold Medals with "A Touch of Class". The pairs' epic performance set an Olympic record as they faulted only a single time throughout the competition (they jumped clean over 90 of 91 obstacles).

Fargis furthered his legacy by winning Team Silver at the 1988 Olympic Games in Seoul and representing the US at the FEI World Equestrian Games in Stockholm in 1990. He twice topped the North American East Coast League in qualifying for the FEI World Cup Final.

Joe's legacy, however, is more than just a competitor. His Sandron Farm in Middleburg, VA, is a renowned training facility that has helped shape the careers of many of the best horses and riders in the country. He has also had a lasting impact on the administration of horse sports in the United States as a valued committee member of the American Horse Show Association (the predecessor to the USEF), United States Hunter Jumper Association, and United States Equestrian Team.
